COMMUNITY OVERVIEW

Pittsburg is a distinct Northern California community situated at the confluence of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. The city has long been a place of advancement, with continuing communitywide improvements being implemented to better serve residents, businesses and visitors alike.

While Pittsburg has committed itself to progress and development, the city also embraces its rich heritage. Current-day Pittsburg is situated on land that came from a 10,000-acre grant from the Mexican government in 1839. From this land came a little community known as New York of the Pacific, which was laid out by native New Yorker Colonel J. D. Stevenson. New York of the Pacific soon became New York Landing – a place that hosted flourishing fishing and canning industry – and then Black Diamond following the discovery of coal just south of town. Black Diamond was incorporated as a city in 1903.

In 1906, the city added a new industry to its mix with the opening of Columbia Geneva Steel. As a result, the community's moniker changed once more as residents renamed the city Pittsburg after the birthplace of the U.S. steel industry – dropping the "h" at the end to offer a more simplified spelling.

Pittsburg continued to develop and welcomed the addition of Camp Stoneman in 1942. The camp served as a training site for troops in the U.S. Army and was the main point of leave for the more than one million American soldiers sent to fight in the Asiatic-Pacific region during World War II. After it closed in 1954, the land was incorporated into the City of Pittsburg, where much in the way of commercial and residential development occurred.

Today, Pittsburg is a thriving city of more than 70,000 residents and hundreds of diverse businesses. It is highlighted by the revitalized Old town district, rich cultural avenues, amenity-filled parks, beautiful homes and exceptional schools. Thanks to the forward-thinking leaders in the local government and such agencies as the Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce, the city continues to expand and enhance its opportunities for both residential living and business success.

TRANSPORTATION

The dynamic City of Pittsburg is positioned in Northern California's beautiful East Bay Area. Its enviable location places it within a close distance of several big-market cities and a vast transportation network of roadways, rail lines and airports.

Highways

California State Route 4 offers an advantageous connection to Interstate 680 approximately 12 miles west of town.

Public Transportation - Commuters and tourists searching for a cost effective and convenient way to travel are afforded the service of two public transit options - Tri Delta Transit and Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART). Tri Delta Transit operates 14 local bus routes during the week and three on weekends and holidays, which link riders with employment centers, schools, parks, shopping centers and BART terminals. The Pittsburg/Bay Point BART terminal station operates along the yellow line - which ends at the San Francisco International Airport (SFO). Pittsburg Center BART station is now open and state of the art diesel trains (or e-BART) connects Pittsburg with the Antioch BART stations - just cross the platform to change trains.

Pittsburg also has several transportation options for senior citizens and handicap individuals, being Tri Delta Paratransit and two volunteer driver programs - Caring Hands and Mobility Matters.

SFO is one of the several major airports within reach of the Pittsburg community. Other commercial airports in the region include Oakland International Airport (OAK), San Jose International Airport (SJC) and Sacramento International Airport (SMF). General and corporate aviation needs are met by Contra Costa County Airports, which operates Buchanan Field in nearby Concord, as well as Byron Airport, located approximately 24 miles southeast of town.

If train is the way you want to go, the Antioch-Pittsburg Amtrak station is close by at 100 I street. To go from Pittsburg to Los Angeles is approximately 9 hours and from Pittsburg to Sacramento is about 2 hours 40 minutes.

In taking the roadways, you can go to Sacramento via I80 or I-5S to CA-160S. Pittsburg is in the center of everything.

PITTSBURG MARINA

The Pittsburg waterfront has long been the center of industrial and governmental activity. Today, Pittsburg Marina has emerged as a major recreational facility on the Delta. The near 600-berth capacity makes the Pittsburg Marina one of the largest on the Delta, and it has become a community within itself. The ample number of overnight berthing allows the Marina to accommodate large cruise-ins, as well as daily or weekend visitors.

The integration of private waterfront homes with public use berthing has created a partnership, making the Pittsburg waterfront one of the city's major assets.

Visit the promenade while you are there for it allows visitors and residents to look out over the Lowy basin. Enjoy the view, have a delicious dining experience, and more.

The Pittsburg Marina enjoys a "Clean Marina Certification". All marina services and maintenance activities are conducted with the utmost care for our environment and our beautiful Delta.

The Pittsburg Marina also has a modern public launch ramp with a bait shop, public park, picnic areas, fishing pier and the Yacht Club. This facility draws many visitors especially when the fishing is good. During the summer our great weather brings many recreational boaters to the free launch ramp. With its strategic location at the confluence of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers, the Pittsburg Marina is one of the most affordable marine facilities on the Delta.

The Pittsburg Yacht Club, a private club founded in 1946, is located at 3 Marina Boulevard. Boating cruise-ins are organized to and from other neighboring marinas through the summer. The facility is a great location that is available to the public for rent for personal use such as weddings or parties.

Individuals that are interested in joining or would like more information on having an event should contact the club at (925) 432-1056. Having a boat is not a requirement for joining!

EDUCATION

The Pittsburg community is committed to instilling a new love of lifelong learning in its students, young and old. Education at all levels and for all abilities is readily available in Pittsburg and its closely surrounding communities, starting with early education through various resources.

Pittsburg is primarily comprised of Pittsburg Unified School District (PUSD), though some of the outlining boundaries fall into the Mt. Diablo or Antioch school districts. Annually, PUSD enrolls approximately 9,300 students, grades K-12, into their innovative programs. For example, students may take Drafting, Wood I, Computer Graphics, Construction Tech, Architectural Design and Robotics as the capstone classes – some as early as 9th grade. Education also includes field trips, guest speakers, collaboration with local industry and businesses, and developing student-run businesses, all designed to capture the interest of students and, more importantly, allows them to be prepared for postsecondary education or careers. In addition to formal education, community groups often host programs for students. The Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce hosts CareerLINK and InterviewLINK each year for high school students. CareerLINK invites 60+ companies to come educate and excite the students about their particular field or company and provides them information about what training and education is needed to pursue that field. InterviewLINK runs students through 'real life' interviews and then gives them resources and feedback for future use. Workforce development is a key part of Pittsburg.

Students and the community also take advantage of an early childhood program such as First Baptist Head Start Program, and afterschool program, high school summer school, independent study, alternate learning, charter schools like Making Waves Academy, and lifelong learning opportunities through the Pittsburg Adult Education Center (PAEC). Please check out the Pittsburg Unified School District website: www.pittsburg.k12.ca.us. Through PAEC, adults enroll in a variety of occupational education programs, ESL program, GED and high school diploma courses and more.

Special needs students are afforded programs through PUSD and organizations such as Spectrum Center Schools that offers non-public school for students with special needs, behavioral issues and emotional disorders.

Pitt Unfy is a special program through Pittsburg High School that provides inclusive sports opportunities and skill development to students with intellectual disabilities. The program joins students with and without intellectual disabilities on the same team to promote social inclusion through shared sports training and competition experiences.

As for higher learning, Pittsburg is home to Contra Costa Community College District's Los Medanos College (LMC), a public, two-year community college offering associate's degrees, transfer curriculum, vocational certificates, and occupational skills certificates. Their ETEC and PTEC technology classes help create a workforce for Pittsburg's many manufacturing businesses.

Adults also have the option of utilizing services such as Opportunity Junction, and educational resource that helps low-income adults obtain the skills and confidence needed to support themselves and their families.
